As you know, the internship course does not meet like a regular class. But I would welcome the opportunity to meet with you at any time during the semester. If my office hours are not convenient and you want to meet either in person or by phone, please call or e-mail me and we will set up an appointment.

Course Description
COM 4940 Communication Internship gives students the opportunity to apply what they have learned in classes to the practice of advertising and/or public relations in real-world organizations, companies and agencies. Students also will have the opportunity through their internship placements to acquire new professional skills through the supervision of an experienced practitioner.

Course Objectives

- Apply advertising and/or public relations skills to real-world organizations, companies and agencies.
- Become acquainted with workplace etiquette and “netiquette” in preparation for assuming other internships or employment.
- Practice writing in a variety of business formats that demonstrates proper use of grammar, punctuation and vocabulary.

Accreditation Objectives

The FIU School of Journalism and Communication is nationally accredited by the Accrediting Council on Education in Journalism and Mass Communication (ACEJMC), which requires that 12 core values, competencies and abilities be addressed in a program’s overall curriculum. The following are ACEJMC student learning outcomes that will be targeted in this course

- demonstrate an understanding of gender, race, ethnicity, sexual orientation and, as appropriate, other forms of diversity in domestic society in relation to mass communications.
- demonstrate an understanding of the diversity of peoples and cultures and of the significance and impact of mass communications in a global society.
• understand concepts and apply theories in the use and presentation of images and information;
• demonstrate an understanding of professional ethical principles and work ethically in pursuit of truth, accuracy, fairness and diversity; think critically, creatively and independently;
• write correctly and clearly in forms and styles appropriate for the communications professions, audiences and purposes they serve;
• critically evaluate their own work and that of others for accuracy and fairness, clarity, appropriate style and grammatical correctness;
• apply tools and technologies appropriate for the communications professions in which they work.

Suggested On-line Reading
There are many on-line sites, particularly blogs and websites, which carry current information about the practice of advertising and public relations. As a practitioner of strategic advertising and public relations, it's critical that you are aware of advertising and public relations situations that “make” the news, either for positive or negative reasons. You should be checking at least one practice-oriented blog each day; you need to be up to date on what’s happening in the profession(s) in which you hope to find a career.

Here’s a list of some of the blogs available:

Major professional associations in advertising and public relations -- such as the American Association of Advertising Agencies and Public Relations Society of America -- also maintain blogs.

Course Communication
Communication in this course will take place via FIU e-mail. If you use another e-mail provider, please link your FIU e-mail with your personal e-mail so mail is automatically forwarded.

Academic Integrity
Students are expected to be honorable and to behave in a manner appropriate for a community of scholars. Florida International University's Code of Academic Integrity applies to all work associated with this class. Any form of academic dishonesty will be treated as a violation of the policy. The code states: "Florida International University is a community dedicated to generating and imparting knowledge through excellent teaching and research, the rigorous and respectful exchange of ideas, and community service. All students should respect the right of others to have an equitable opportunity to learn and honestly to demonstrate the quality of their learning. Therefore, all students are expected to adhere to a standard of academic conduct, which demonstrates respect for themselves, their fellow students, and the educational mission of Florida International University." completing academic assignments and/or contrary to the above stated policies concerning academic integrity.

Diversity Statement
The School of Journalism and Communication fosters an environment of inclusivity and respect for diversity and multiculturalism. It educates students to embrace diversity and understand the root causes of discrimination, as well as social, ethnic, sexual, disability and gender-based exclusion.

Assignments

Keeping a journal
Create a journal – like a professional diary – for your internship. Each time you work at your internship, write down what you did, what you learned and any opinions and thoughts about what happened that day. You may do this in your handwriting if you prefer rather than typing it, but make it legible. There are no length requirements.

Submit this to me February 7, March 19, and April 25 for my review.

I will not grade your journals. I will use them only to help you get the most possible out of your internship. Your journal also is a good way to let me know if there are any problems or uncomfortable situations with your internship that you don’t think you can share with your supervisor. I am the only person who will see your journal.

Your supervisor’s evaluation of your work
It is your responsibility to make sure that your supervisor completes the required evaluation of your performance. I will email this form to you when you sign up for credit. I suggest you make the evaluation form available to your supervisor at the beginning of your internship so he/she knows from the beginning what aspects of your performance she/he will be expected to evaluate. You also might find it helpful to know how you’ll be evaluated. Your supervisor needs to send the evaluation directly to me, either in hard copy form or as a scanned document via e-mail, so that I receive it no later than April 25. Your supervisor should not give the evaluation to you and ask you to deliver it.
